Venice levy down

By VALERIE EVENDEN
Staff writer

VENICE — Property taxes are not expected to rise next year to operate the Venice public schools, based on the tax levy adopted tentatively Thursday night by the Venice Board of Education.

The $526,500 levy for collection in 1986 is $41,000 less than the $567,500 adopted last November.

PUBLIC COMMENTS on the new levy can be made by Venice taxpayers at a hearing at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 14, prior to its formal adoption.

"The total tax rate of $3.81 per $100 assessed evaluation will be about the same," Venice Supt. of Schools Robert N. Vickers predicted. The actual rate is to be determined next spring when the levy is applied to the new assessment total.

Venice's total real estate assessment currently is $12 million, Vickers noted.

"We had a $400,000 levy extension (by the county clerk) last year but took in only $365,000," Board Attorney Michael Billrey said after reading the new levy resolution.

"IF THE ASSESSMENT goes up, we could collect more," he added.

Reviews & Previews In the News

Murder victims from Granite City

TWO OF THE THREE VICTIMS of a murder in Edwardsville Oct. 7 were formerly of the Granite City area. Three people were shot before a house fire early in the morning on Smith Road northwest of Edwardsville, according to Madison County authorities. The victims were identified as Kevin L. Burch, 25, of Edwardsville; Della Riggins, 20, of Glen Carbon; and Christopher K. Shrom, 26, of Edwardsville. Burch and Riggins were former residents of Granite City. The Madison County Fire Investigative Task Force and the Illinois Department of Criminal Investigation have determined the fire was arson and the victims suffered gunshot wounds prior to the fire. An investigation is continuing.

Election previews will continue

ELECTION PREVIEWS of local school board elections will continue the next three weeks. Previews of the candidates will appear in the Wednesday issues of the Journal, with full biographies and photographs running in the Thursday Press-Record. Madison School Board candidates were profiled last week, with Granite City candidates to appear tomorrow. Other elections to be previewed are the Venice School Board and the Belleville Area College Board of Trustees.

Quote of the week — Carol Chiappa

"I DIDN'T HAVE ANY RESPONSE from them (at first) and I felt kind of bad when I left. I figured I really bombed," Carol Chiappa, of the Phoenix Crisis Center, after a speech to the Council of United Methodist Churches. Things went better than she thought, however. The council pledged enough money to rent a home for the center for six months.

Briggs seeks county school board office

Harry A. Briggs Jr. of Granite City announced Friday he will be a Democratic candidate for regional superintendent of schools in the March 18 primary. He is principal of Niedringhaus Elementary School in Granite City. His uncle, Regional Supt. Harold E. "Gene" Briggs, announced he will retire from the Madison County office.

Harry Briggs, 38, has been involved in education for the past 17 years, 10 years as a teacher and seven years as an administrator. He has been a teacher, administrator, coach and official during his education career.

DURING HIS 17 YEARS with the Granite City School District, he has served as testing coordinator for the district, has served twice on the negotiating team for non-certificated personnel, has been active on various committees to adopt textbooks, and has served on the district curriculum committee and the committee which was successful in passing the 1984 school bond issue. Briggs is a lifelong resident of

Harry A. Briggs Jr.

Granite City. He is married to the former Clabbe Ingram of Granite City, also a teacher.

They have two sons, Harry III, who is 16 years old, and Kyle, six years old. They reside at 2031 Amos Ave.

A 1965 graduate of Granite City High School, Briggs earned a bachelor degree in business administration from Southern Illinois University in 1969, a master degree in education administration from SIU at Edwardsville in 1976, and a specialist degree in education administration from SIUE in 1983.

BRIGGS WILL START work on his doctorate in education administration at St. Louis University later this year.

He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, a professional fraternity in education; Phi Kappa Phi, a national honor fraternity in education; and Elks Lodge 1063.

He is president of the Southwestern Officials Association, an organization of area football and basketball officials. Briggs has officiated in the Illinois High School Association tournament series in both football and basketball.

"My educational background and experience make me a well-qualified candidate for the office of regional superintendent of schools. If elected, I will continue to operate the office with the integrity, honesty and efficiency of retiring Supt. Harold Briggs," the candidate commented.

ALTHOUGH THE GENERAL election is in November 1986, the present four-year term extends to August 1987 under state law.

Harold "Gene" Briggs, 3216 Wilshire Drive, a recipient of Illinois education "Those who excel" recognition, told the Press-Record/Journal on Friday, "I am taking this opportunity to officially announce that I will not be a candidate for re-election to the office of regional superintendent of schools."

"When the current term expires on the first Monday in August 1987, I will have completed 36½ years in education, with 14 of those years as the regional superintendent."

"DURING THIS TIME, we have accomplished many positive educational achievements for the students (See BRIGGS, Page 6A)

Lesser coverage actually costing much more

(Part two in a series)
By SUSANNE INDELICATO

It's a case of less insurance for more money — much more. Last year, Joe's company paid $16,000 for $20 million in insurance coverage. This year, Joe's company was offered $10 million in coverage for $85,000.

This example is typical of the situation — industries, government, business and individuals face today, according to Tom Kiehl of Insurance Service Center in Granite City.

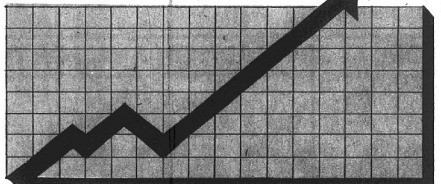

"You've got to face reality," he said. "You're going to pay a lot more for coverage and the deductible."

Casualty insurance rates will be limited and expensive for the next two years while the insurance industry tries to increase its reserves, Kiehl predicts.

"Not only industry will be affected, but 'you ain't seen nothing yet' as far as medical liability insurance. Kiehl said. And insurance industry experts say malpractice insurance on accountants and lawyers is going up 300 to 500 percent.

"Those professionals are likely to pass the higher insurance costs onto customers and patients.

More than double

THE COST OF INSURANCE

And the insurance problem may also affect homeowners.

"The availability of homeowners (insurance) is not in danger, but we'll pay a lot more for it," Kiehl said.

"The insurance industry only wants to take those risks that are profitable," he said. "Low-valued properties are not profitable. A dwelling 50 years old is not, by underwriting standards, a good risk as opposed to a new home on the other side of the tracks."

That means a $30,000 homeowners policy on an older dwelling may have cost $160 last year. This year, the homeowner may pay $300 for fire insurance only, Kiehl said.

Perhaps the most visible victims of rising insurance costs are public entities.

"There are major problems, particularly in the public sector," said

Jim Henderson of Lueders Agency in Granite City.

Recently, Madison County, the Metro-East Sanitary District, Nameoki Township, the Granite City School District and the Venice School District faced problems obtaining liability insurance.

"We solved Venice schools," Henderson said. "The price is up 20 percent and they have a 25 percent reduction in their coverage."

Meanwhile, the Granite City School District decided to self-insure itself and obtain excess insurance coverage from Arthur Gallagher Insurance Co. in St. Louis.

"By doing that, instead of having a 130 percent increase in premiums, we only have a 73 percent increase," said Norman Owca, financial director for the school system.

Madison County was ready to self-insure until it found coverage from Lloyd's of London — but not enough coverage.

The Lloyd's policy costs $140,000, but there is a $50,000-per-claim deductible until the county pays a total deductible of $325,000 during a one-year period.

Crisis almost ruined Wolfe

The insurance crisis almost meant the end of a Granite City business.

"I'll have an auction and quit," Glenn Wolfe, owner of M.H. Wolfe and Co., general contractors, said about increased liability insurance costs while he was seeking insurance.

"If you can't pay your insurance out of your operating expenses for a year, you cut into your reserves. You can't do that and stay in business," he said.

Wolfe finally obtained liability insurance Aug. 29, but the coverage is costing him 80 percent more than last year. Wolfe said he needs a minimum $2 million in liability coverage to operate his construction business.

His new policy, provided by a company he won't identify, retains the $250 deductible he had last year.

Before he found a new insurance provider, Wolfe's liability insurance coverage had been extended twice and was under review.

The big thing is most insurance companies, particularly the ones writing standard policies, are shying away from contractors in Illinois," he said.

"The construction industry in Illinois is increasingly getting hit to the point where we're alarmed," said Tom Kiehl of Insurance Service Center in Granite City. "The companies will maintain strict underwriting requirements, and there will be no credits on rates."

Without credits on the rates, the rates go up, as Wolfe learned.

He was faced with a 1,000 percent increase on umbrella liability insurance premiums with a $10,000 to $20,000 deductible, he said.

Wolfe had paid between $40,000 and $50,000 for $2 million in liability insurance with a $250 deductible last year. He was being offered premiums of $300,000 to $450,000 this year, he said.

"If I don't get the standard coverage comparable to last year, I can't stay in business. I can't afford the premiums," Wolfe said.

Fairer distribution of federal taxes urged

To the Editor:
How much federal income tax did you pay last year?

Chances are you paid more than AT&T. Last year, AT&T didn't pay a dime on its $1.9 billion in U.S. profits. Instead, it received $242 million in tax refunds.

And you probably paid more than General Dynamics. That defense contractor, whose $9,600 Allen wrenches and executive dog kennel fees billed to the Pentagon attracted lots of attention in recent months, "zeroed out" on federal taxes, despite profits of $650 million.

Fifty major, profitable companies managed to avoid paying federal income taxes between 1981 and 1984, notwithstanding their $57 billion in combined domestic profits.

As if this weren't enough, Treasury Department data released last month by Rep. J.J. Pickle (D-Texas) revealed that more than 3,000 individuals who earned in excess of $1 million in 1983 paid less than 5 percent of their income in federal taxes.

This sort of tax avoidance — all perfectly legal — goes to the heart of popular frustration with our current tax system.

Support for reform does not come from the idea of paying taxes; indeed, the American people appear to be highly skeptical of the likelihood or advisability of tax cuts now, in the face of growing deficits and a worsening trade gap.

Rather, it comes from the sinking feeling of "being had" — realization that some companies and wealthy individuals are able to manipulate the tax code in a way others cannot.

Regrettably, the President's tax plan is, in most ways, irrelevant to or, worse, antithetical to this populist base of support for reform. The administration program would leave intact or, in some cases, even expand the principal loopholes for corporate and upper-income tax avoidance.

"Accelerated depreciation" is now the single biggest corporate loophole, and the linchpin for most individual tax shelters as well, particularly in the real estate field.

Everyone agrees businesses ought to be able to deduct the cost of acquiring a new machine or new building as that machine or building "depreciates" — that is, as it wears out or becomes obsolete. But with accelerated depreciation, they can deduct the cost of purchasing new capital assets over a period of time much shorter than the asset is expected to last.

This produces bigger deductions, lower taxable income and much lower taxes, especially for big companies that make a lot of capital investments in the normal course of doing business. According to the Treasury Department, the current method of fast depreciation, called the Accelerated Cost Recovery System, will cost the federal government $213 billion over the next five years.

The president, in his tax plan, has recommended a new brand of accelerated depreciation which is even more generous than the current approach. As a result, the Congressional Budget Office has concluded that his proposals for tax reform would "probably provide a corporate tax cut."

Why would the president do this? Well, big businesses are a big part of the Republican constituency, and they have easy access to the White House. They evidently have convinced him, as they have convinced many in Congress, that this loophole and others are needed to "stimulate new investment."

The loophole simply have not worked. Since 1961, when Accelerated Cost Recovery was first enacted and the investment tax credit was liberalized, the annual rate of increase in new business investment has been only half of what it was during President Carter's term.

New capital spending has come almost exclusively from purchases of computers and leasing of automobiles — hardly the keys to reinvigoration of our nation's basic industries.

Corporate loopholes have been the bane of the manufacturing companies they were designed to help. Congress' Joint Committee on Taxation says the total value of all corporate loopholes will reach $120 billion in the upcoming fiscal year. That's more than half the total federal deficit.

It has been the deficit that has driven up interest rates, driven up the value of the dollar, driven up the cost of exports, and slashed the price of imports.

There's a little question that America's "rust belt" would be better off with fewer loopholes, a smaller deficit, and a better exchange rate on the dollar.

Or perhaps the president agrees with the refrain (one of Paul Harvey's favorites) that corporations don't pay taxes, they just charge higher prices for their products and shift the burden to consumers. But this slogan doesn't stand up under scrutiny, either.

Common sense suggests that firms wouldn't hire all the lobbyists they do if taxes could be "passed on" so easily. Experience confirms that consumers set prices in competitive markets.

Texaco paid no tax, Mobil paid at a rate of 12.5 percent and Exxon paid 27 percent of its profits in taxes. But the prices they charge at the pump vary hardly at all.

The income tax takes a bite out of corporate profits and thus is borne by the companies and their owners, who tend to be a wealthy lot. "We can't pass these costs on to consumers," admitted the chief financial officer of AT&T at a recent Congressional hearing.

One of the unfair aspects of our current tax system is how it rewards some businesses and penalizes others. Although many companies pay no tax at all, there are some that pay a great deal. Food and beverage, textile and tobacco companies typically pay taxes at rates of 30 percent or more of their profits. Many of these have begun to add their voices to the chorus demanding repeal of loopholes which create such an uneven playing field for business.

Let's write representatives and senators, telling them that true tax reform begins when all businesses and all individuals pay their fair share. Let's urge them to support changes to put tax avoiders — corporate and individual — back on the tax rolls.

Worker compensation change can benefit all

To the Editor:
A major cost-cutting reform in the administration of the state workers' compensation program, signed into law in recent days by Gov. James R. Thompson, will benefit both business and labor.

SB 447 (Public Act 84-861) contains a key recommendation of the Illinois Alliance for Economic Initiatives, an affiliate of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

It amends the W.C. Act to provide that employers will report to the Illinois Industrial Commission only those injuries that result in an employee's absence from the job of more than three working days.

Past law mandated that reports be filed for all injuries that resulted in lost time of more than one workday, resulted in more than routine medical care or caused the worker to be assigned to alternative work tasks. The new provision will substantially reduce the number of accident reports employers need to file, leading to significant cost savings, while providing a manageable number of reports filed with the commission to create an accurate statistical data base on work-related accidents.

With adequate funding, the commission can utilize these reports to generate statistics on the total Illinois workers' compensation caseload, providing a better basis for setting future W.C. public policy. The amendment was one of several recommendations issued by the Alliance to improve administration of the state's W.C. system following a thorough study of the commission.

What might appear to be a minor amendatory change in the system is actually a major first step in long-sought efforts to improve administration of the state's W.C. program.

This amendment allows for a more manageable number of accident reports to be sent to the commission. We now urge the governor and legislators to provide funding so these statistics can be compiled. Business and labor alike will benefit.

Christmas cards by O.A.T.H. available

By DONNA KIMBRO
Staff writer

Hand-crafted, silk-screened Christmas cards produced by clients of Oath (Organization for Advancement of The Handicapped) are now available at Schermer's Garden Shop in Madison.

Packages of the unique cards will also be sold at the Kitchen Cousins Store in Belleville. The holiday designs and verses are embossed on fine linen paper and packaged at Oath's Madison center, with 25 cards and 27 envelopes per package.

THEY ARE ENCLOSED in plastic containers also made at the Oath workshop.

Cost of the professionally finished cards is $10.50 per package. Larger orders for individuals or business places are also available and the cards may be personalized, Janet Baum, operations manager, said.

"This year, due to additional expertise in the field of silk screening, we were able to produce especially high-quality greeting cards. They were designed by a commercial artist and our clients did the work under the supervision of Barb Mayer," Baum explained.

THERE ARE 22 workers at Oath, and 10 are trained to rotate on this project. The manager added that two people work at the screening process, one keeping the ink on the screen and the other "flooding" the paper to print the design.

"We needed some program to increase our revenues and have been an exciting one and also a morale booster," she said.

Peace On Earth

The inscription on the cards is "Peace on Earth" and the insignia on the back of the card communicates a buyer's active support of Oath, which is well known for training developmentally disabled adults in job skills that lead to greater independence.

Those at the workshop are paid for their work on each project instituted there.

SINCE OATH has not-for-profit status, and since funds from sale of the cards and any donations are funneled directly back into client-oriented growth activities, they are regarded as tax-deductible, she said.

Long-range plans are to continue and expand this type of project, by creating various types of stationery and gift cards, although the cost of a screen is $30 and every program must be self-supporting in order to be continued.

Venice Township donated some of the equipment but the workshop is in need of more drying racks and also more vacuum tables for color work.

STAFF WORKERS are considering other kinds of screen painting projects or textile painting if the cost is prohibitive.

"If this can be worked out, we hope to offer the schools a package deal on tee shirts or some type of product the schools would be interested in purchasing," the manager said.

Each person at the Madison location is assigned to work according to his or her ability.

AFTER TRAINING at the workshop and mastering a variety of work assignments, some are ready for advancement but have no place to continue on an advanced basis.

As a result, Oath staff members are planning to take some of the clients to visit The Lambs, Libertyville, Ill., a handicapped-related shopping center.

"We hope future plans will provide our people with such a center to develop their skills in a more profitable way and give them the increased independence they work so hard for," the manager concluded.

Beginning educators being observed, aided

By VALERIE EVENEDEN
of the Press-Record

VENICE — An experimental program to provide support to educators in their initial year in a new position was initiated Wednesday in the Venice School District.

The Beginner Educator Support Team project, known by the acronym BEST, is being sponsored by Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and local school districts.

ABOUT 20 TEAMS are being established in districts throughout Madison and St. Clair counties, according to Venice Superintendent of Schools Robert N. Vickers.

Dr. James M. Comer of the SIUE Department of Education is heading the project, assisted by other SIUE personnel. Vickers is taking the leading role at the local level.

Venice has two faculty members — in new positions this year — who will be assisted through the program.

Seth Kirkpatrick, principal of Venice Grade School, has held that post for less than six months. Ramona Glasper is a new first grade teacher.

ON THE VENICE TEAM with Comer and Vickers is Sina Reeves, a third grade teacher who has 30 years experience in the teaching.

The cooperating colleague's role is to provide support for the participating educator.

Several topics were reviewed during Wednesday's meeting with SIUE representatives, Vickers said. Comer suggested a teaching aide be assigned one hour each week to relieve Reeves of her classroom duties, enabling her to observe and share her experience with Glasper in the first grade room.

"We have made a beginning," Vickers said.

COMER WILL SERVE as a resource guide to the team and provide theoretical inputs in team decisions.

YMCA open house Nov. 3

The Tri-City Area YMCA, 2001 Edison Ave., will hold an open house on Sunday, Nov. 3, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

In order to better serve the community and to promote public awareness, the "Y" will conduct free classes and demonstrations in aerobics and fitness fantasia, karate, gymnastics, swimming, yoga, scuba, and Nautilus and Universal weights. The gymnasium will be open as well as the swimming pool.

Also featured at "YMCA Sunday" will be awarding of free classes and a free full-privilege membership. Scheduled guests include Joe Bozile of the St. Louis football Cardinals and Fredbird, mascot of the baseball Cardinals.

The YMCA in Granite City focuses on family-oriented health and recreation.

Sanders in Springfield

During the first semester of the 1985-86 school year, Ned Sanders, 17, the daughter of Robert and Charlene Sanders of Granite City, is participating in the Illinois Governmental Internship Program. She is an intern to Jan Gornien of the Illinois Alcoholism Counselor Certification Board in Springfield.

Miss Sanders, a Granite City High School senior, reported to Springfield Aug. 24 and is to complete her assignment there Jan. 1.

During the summer, she was a local delegate to Illinois Girls State, which is sponsored each year by the American Legion Auxiliary and was held at MacMurray College, Jacksonville.

The Illinois Governmental Internship Program is for high school seniors with outstanding ability and leadership. The program is co-sponsored by the State Board of Education and Springfield public schools. The program is a part of the Executive Internship of America, which is in operation in 21 states.

Nearly 6,000 students in the U.S. participate each year.

Students who apply for the program go through several levels of screening. They interview with their local superintendent, the educational service region superintendent and a statewide selection committee, composed of educators as well as representatives of state government.

The students selected as interns take a full semester's sabbatical from regular studies. The Governmental Internship Program enables high school seniors to explore career opportunities with an executive in government agencies and related organizations.

Interns attend policy meetings, prepare memoranda and reports, and occasionally travel with their sponsors. They work regular business hours with their sponsor Monday through Thursday. On Fridays, all of the interns meet for seminars on executive behavior and organizational analysis, in which they discuss materials they have read.

They sometimes meet with officials and make site visits to programs in operation. The program seeks to link the theoretical and the practical, combining the best elements of classroom analysis with actual experience in the world of executives and organizations.

School Elections '85

10 candidates vying for 4 spots on Granite City board

Ten candidates will be vying for four spots on the Granite City School Board in the Nov. 5 election. Three of the four incumbents up for re-election are running again, with only Tom Miosky dropping out.

Seven newcomers are looking to unseat the incumbents. The following are brief profiles of the candidates. For a full biography and profile of each person, see tomorrow's Press-Record.

Monroe Worthen

Monroe Worthen has served on the school board since April 1960. The senior member of the board in terms of service, Worthen, 52, has served three years as president, four years as treasurer and several years on the Citizens Advisory Committee.

Worthen is a business and tax consultant and lives at 2945 Fortune Drive in Granite City. He is a graduate of Granite City High School and has a bachelor of science degree in business administration from the St. Louis University School of Commerce and Finance.

Alan Crider

Alan Crider has been a member of the school board since 1983. He is currently the board secretary.

Crider, 36, has a bachelor of science in English and history from Southern Illinois University and a master's degree in education from SIU.

He has served as head of the district's Gifted Student program and is now a teacher at Wydown Junior High School in Clayton, Mo.

Crider lives at 4034 Stearns Ave. in Granite City.

Ruth Lahr

Ruth Lahr is the third incumbent seeking re-election to the board.

Lahr, 61, has 36 years of experience as a teacher and administrator and has been on the board since 1983. She served many years in charge of the district's Chapter I reading and mathematics program.

Lahr has a bachelor of arts degree in education from McKendree College and a master of arts degree in education from the University of Illinois and is certified in guidance and counseling.

She lives at 330 Lenox Ave. in Mitchell.

Gerald McKeahan

Gerald McKeahan is one of seven newcomers trying to win a seat on the school board.

McKeahan, 37, was a teacher and coach for 13 years, with 10 of those years in the Granite City School District. He was the head football coach at Granite City High School South for two years and previously served as an assistant coach.

of Madison County. We have received two national awards, one for the establishment of the Educational Therapy Program and the other for the establishment of the Madison County Arts Council.

"We are known for and can be justly proud of the many other programs and services we have initiated.

"This is a regulatory office, with duties outlined by the state legislators, but we have taken pride over the years in going beyond this in providing services to the educational community.

"THIS OFFICE HAS received tremendous support from the Madison County Board in providing us with the facilities, encouragement and budget to accomplish this. "Knowing the importance of continuing services in a professional manner," I wholeheartedly endorse the candidacy of my nephew, Harry A. Briggs, for this position as the Democratic candidate in the upcoming primary election.

"I believe Harry stands for the high ideals of professionalism toward education for which this office has become known.

"He believes in service above and beyond the call of the office and has the ability to work cooperatively with the board. Such cooperation is very important for continued improvement of this office."

Venice

A comparison of the tentative levy with last year's levy figures in parentheses shows:

Education, $400,000 ($430,000), down $30,000; operations, building and maintenance, $57,000 ($52,000), down $5,000; transportation, $20,000 ($21,000), down $1,000; working cash fund, $7,000 ($8,000), down $1,000.

Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, $25,000, same; fire prevention, safety, environmental and energy conservation, $7,000 ($8,000), down $1,000; tort immunity, $2,500 ($1,500), up $1,000; special education, $6,000 ($8,000), down $2,000; and workers compensation, $2,000 ($4,000), down $2,000.

VENICE SCHOOL board members adopted a 1985-86 budget of $1,851,395 to operate the public schools, following a Sept. 12 public hearing.

Along with this budget, the board also approved a $625,044 budget for the Venice-Lincoln Technical Center.

Funds expended for the adult vocational education center are provided through state and federal grant programs and do not originate directly from Venice taxpayers.

BOTH PROGRAMS are administered by the Venice board, which acts on all purchases, hiring and curriculum decisions.

The combined budgets for the Venice grade and high schools and Venice-Lincoln Technical Center total $2,476,439.

Estimated receipts from all sources are $2,296,777, plus a $188,244 balance in various funds, giving a brighter outlook for Venice school finances than in many years, Vickers said at an earlier meeting.

However, in March the district learned of a loss of $1.3 million in the total assessed valuation of property within the district for the 1984 tax year.

Another $1.5 million in valuation had been lost to the Venice School District in the 1983 tax year.

Insurance

After satisfaction of the deductible, the company is responsible for a maximum of $250,000 for liability claims and a maximum of $500,000 for each property damage claim.

The county has found another layer of insurance which, with the Lloyd's policy, covers up to $1 million in losses. The county is still seeking $10 million more in insurance coverage, according to Rita Keene, the county's safety and insurance director.

But should claims against the county exceed coverage, the county, and ultimately the taxpayer, becomes responsible for paying them.

Sister M. Kevin Ford

Joins medical center board

Sister Mary Kevin Ford, C.S.J., has been appointed to the governing board of St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

A native of Delmar, N.Y., Sister Ford currently serves as president of Health Care Corporation of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet. She also is vice chairperson of the board of directors of Pope John XX-III Medical-Moral Research and Education Institute, a past president of the Catholic Health Association and the CSJ/SSJ Health Alliance, and serves on the Financial Council of the Archdiocese of St. Louis.

Before coming to St. Louis in 1972, she served as director of the School of Nursing at St. Mary's Hospital in Amsterdam, N.Y. Former general superior of her congregation, she has held numerous intracongregational positions.

She joins the SEMC board following the board's recommendation and the official appointment by the medical center's corporate members.

Sister Ford replaces Sister Isidore Lennon, R.S.M., who is retiring after 13 years on the board. Sister Lennon will remain an emeritus member of the board while continuing as a consultant to community relations at St. John Mercy Medical Center, St. Louis.

Olin dumping losing plants

In a move that could affect 20 percent of the Olin work force across the country, the company is moving to close or sell its most unprofitable operations that don't fit long-range earnings strategies.

Olin's total work force of about 7,000 people will be reduced by about 3,500 through the sale or closing of "certain businesses," according to a company statement.

The firm declined to say specifically what operations are involved or how the reductions would affect the local region's Olin work force, which numbers about 4,500, although some layoffs are expected.

"This action is a further step in Olin's plans to reposition its assets, which include the recent divestiture of Olin's cigarette paper operations and a series of strategic acquisitions in the areas of electronic materials and advanced defense technologies," according to the company.

Besides selling or liquidating certain businesses, Olin will permanently decommission chemical facilities presently on standby status, restructure to better reflect worldwide economic conditions, and reduce salaries positions. Much of the restructuring seems to be taking place in Olin's chemical division.

The restructuring is expected to cause the company to show a loss in 1985, but according to John W. Henske, chairman and chief executive officer, "implementation of the program will significantly improve our operating results in 1986 and beyond and will permit the company to concentrate resources in its growth areas."

The two major divisions at Olin's East Alton plant, the Brass Group and Winchester Group, were among the company's best performers the last few years, accounting for 32.7 and 12.6 percent of Olin's 1984 profits. However, Winchester profits have been declining for several years from a 1982 position where they accounted for over 30 percent of Olin's total earnings.

Other areas of heavy involvement by Olin include chemicals, paper, cellophane, skis, fastening systems, flares and water treatment systems. The company recorded sales of just over $2 billion and earnings of $89 million in 1984. The restructuring is expected to reduce annual sales by about $420 million.

100-year firms
are honored

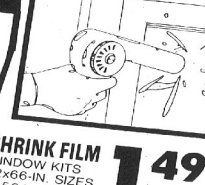

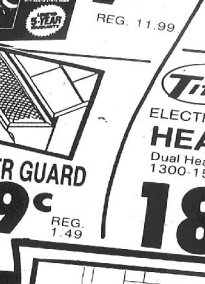

The Illinois State Historical Society honored 95 Illinois centennial businesses at the second annual "salute to Illinois business pioneers" recognition reception and banquet held in Collinsville on Oct. 5. Those honored included the Collinsville Herald newspaper.

The program recognizes Illinois firms that have been in continuous operation for 100 years or more.

Muny to present 'Old Times' Oct. 19

"Old Times," Harold Pinter's British play starring Liv Ullmann, Nicola Pagett, and Pinter himself, will be presented by The Muny at the American Theater Oct. 19-26.

This production is touring nationally before opening on Broadway later this year. Performance times are Saturday, Oct. 19, at 8 p.m. and Monday, Oct. 21, through Saturday, Oct. 26, at 8 p.m. There will also be 2 p.m. matinees on Sunday, Oct. 20, Wednesday, Oct. 23, and Saturday, Oct. 26.

"Old Times" is a story first presented in 1971 about a married couple, Kate and Deeley, living in a remote coastal English farmhouse. They are visited by Anna, an old friend of Kate's who also happens to be her only friend. Kate and Anna shared a flat during their secretarial days in London.

What emerges through the following gossip sessions, drinks and dialogue, is that Kate is an unattainable figure whom both Anna and Deeley want to possess, but neither really knows. In talking over old times and reminiscing, they reactivate an old rivalry from their youth, while Kate withdraws and quietly listens. It is a story of jealousy, distorted memories, envy and domination.

Ullmann, who will play Anna, is not only a film star of worldwide renown, but in the last few years has established herself as a star of the Broadway theater. She began her career as a film actress in her native Norway before starring in Ingmar Bergman's "Persona." This began a 15-film association with the noted, Swedish director. She made her Broadway debut in "A Doll's House" and has since appeared in "Anna Christie," the musical "I Remember Mama" and "Ghosts."

Ullmann has written two books, "Changing," which has been translated into more than 24 languages, and "Choices." She is a spokeswoman for the United Nations and is a UNICEF ambassador of goodwill.

Pinter is an award-winning playwright with such other plays to his credit as "A Night Out," "The Caretaker," "The Homecoming," "Family Voices" and "One for the Road." He has written the screenplays for "The Last Tycoon," "The Birthday Party," "The French Lieutenant's Woman" and many more. He is also a director of many plays and films.

Pinter has been the recipient of such writing awards as the Shakespeare Prize for Literature and the European Prize for Literature from numerous universities.

Playing the part of Kate will be Pagett, a British stage and television actress. She has starred in London productions of "Boston Story," "The Misanthrope," "Hamlet," "Marriage of Figaro" and many others. Her TV appearances include the London Weekend's most popular and successful series, "Upstairs, Downstairs," and starring in the title role of the BBC's production of "Anna Karenina." An English director and producer, Jones also directed the London production of "Old Times" with both Ullmann and Pagett last spring.

"Old Times" received praise during that London production. The

Liv Ullmann

London Times wrote, "It is a pleasure to welcome the return of this beautiful piece, scrupulously directed and played by a crack company." The Sunday Telegraph said, "The work is extraordinarily tense and compact. It is also extraordinarily funny. What is remarkable about Pinter's comedy is that it not merely raises a laugh, but invariably reveals some hitherto concealed aspect of a character or a situation."

Ticket prices range from $16.90 to $22.90, depending on seat location and day and time of performance. Organized groups of 10 or more can receive up to a 20 percent discount per ticket for the Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evening performances, and up to 10 percent for the Saturday and Sunday matinees.

There is also a special 50 percent discount to groups attending the Oct. 23 matinee. In addition, students and faculty members may purchase individual tickets for any performance (except Friday and Saturday evenings) at a 20 percent discount by presenting valid ID cards at the time of purchase.

Tickets are available at The Muny box office in Forest Park and at these Ticketmaster outlets: all Famous Barr stores, all Dillard's stores, Team Togs and Tickets at Northwest Plaza and Chesterfield Mall, and Regal Sports downtown. Tickets may be charged on MasterCard, Visa or American Express by calling Charga-A-Tic at 1-814-231-1264. Tickets will also be available at the American Theater during the week of the show.

Oliveira performs at Powell Symphony Hall

The first American to capture a gold medal at the Tchaikovsky Violin Competition in Moscow, Elmar Oliveira, will perform Barber's Concerto for violin and Orchestra with the Saint Louis Symphony at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 26 and at 3 p.m. Oct. 27 at Powell Symphony Hall, 718 N. Grand St. Louis. Principal guest conductor Raymond Leppard will conduct the program.

The orchestra will also perform Lutoslawski's "Little Suite" (Mala Sutta) and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6, "Pathétique." The son of Portuguese immigrants, Oliveira enrolled at the Hart College of Music at age 11 and three years later debuted with the Hartford Symphony. He continued his studies with Raphael Bronstein and Leonard Bernstein. Oliveira won the Walter W. Naumburg and the G.B. Dealey Dallas News Competition in 1975, later giving two recitals at New York's Alice Tully Hall. He won the Tchaikovsky Competition in 1978 in addition to interpretation of an original work by Soviet composer Grigori Zabarov.

His career includes performances with the orchestras of Chicago, New York, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Minnesota and Dallas.

Tickets for these performances are priced from $5 to $35 each. A discounted rate of 25 percent is available to groups of 20 or more. Persons may call 1-314-552-2500, extension 293, for group information or 1-314-534-1700 for regular or student ticket information.

A lecture related to this program will be delivered by Francis J. Guentner of the music department, St. Louis University, an hour prior to the start of each concert in the left orchestra section of the concert hall.

Fall foliage cruise set

An autumn expedition aboard the steamboat Julia Belle Swain to view the fall foliage along the Missouri, Mississippi and Illinois rivers is the next excursion to be offered by the American Association of Railroaders Inc., a non-profit educational and historical organization interested in transportation.

The tour party will depart from downtown St. Louis aboard a chartered bus at 7:45 a.m. Oct. 27 enroute to St. Charles.

After arriving at this historic Missouri River town, the group will board the Julia Belle Swain, one of the last sternwheel steamboats on the inland waterways of America.

In addition to steaming down the Missouri River, which is still in a primitive state much like it was when Lewis and Clark started their exploration of the Louisiana Territory, this voyage will head up the Mississippi and Illinois rivers after reaching the confluence near Wood River.

The fare of $90 for adults and $70 for children includes all transportation, three full meals, snacks and the on-board entertainment. Reservations are limited to 46 and may be obtained by sending a check to AAR, 3922 Osage St., St. Louis, Mo. 63118. For more information, persons may phone 1-314-752-3148.

New Danville prison opens

The state's newest prison was dedicated Oct. 9. The Danville Correctional Center is a medium-security facility that has 926 cells, receiving inmates within a week. The prison is the ninth added to the state's system since 1977, a period in which space for more than 8,500 inmates has been added. In the decade before 1977, no new prison space was built in Illinois although the state's inmate population doubled.

The 325,000-square-foot Danville prison contains 14 buildings, which include four units for housing, five guard towers, an academic, vocational and multi-purpose building, an administration, medical and special housing building, a dietary complex, a maintenance building off the grounds, and a building to house an Illinois Correctional Industries bookbinding and corrugated box manufacturing operation.

The towers will be manned by armed correctional officers and the prison is surrounded by double rows of chain-link fencing topped with razor-sharp concertina wire.

The prison's power plant, located outside the fences, is a unique fluidized-bed combustion boiler system that utilizes three burners to burn Illinois coal in a bubbling bed of limestone. The power plant's design will help contain utility expenses while demonstrating use of high-sulfur Illinois coal within the use of a costly scrubber system, officials said.

The annual budget for the Danville prison will be nearly $15 million.

A similar facility is under construction in Galesburg and will be completed within a year.

Veto again bars putting troopers in politics

Legislation which would have permitted state troopers to participate in political activities — and barred local governments from restricting political activities of their employees — was vetoed by Gov. James Thompson last week.

It was the second time in two years he has vetoed legislation which would repeal a 1949 law barring troopers from partisan political activity.

Thompson said the bill would harm professional law enforcement, and be a disservice to "today's well-trained, non-political Illinois State Police."

He also rejected a ban on local governments imposing restrictions on political activities of their employees. The governor contends this should be a matter left to local agencies to decide, in weighing its Amendment rights to free speech versus the need to protect the public from undue political influence in delivery of services.

Both bills were sent back to the General Assembly for its October session.

Thompson did sign into law a variety of other bills, ranging from tougher penalties against hazardous waste dumpers to legislation affecting sex offenders.

The toxic waste measure makes improper disposal of hazardous waste a felony, carrying a fine up to $250,000 per violation. It takes effect Jan. 1.

Thompson also signed a measure allowing the seizure of any vehicle, vessel or aircraft used in the commission of sex-related crimes. That also takes effect Jan. 1.

The governor approved a package of bills intended to reduce the dropout rate among public school students.

One of the bills is aimed at problems of families who move during a school year. It bars public schools from refusing to admit a student for failure to present records from a school previously attended, and requires prior attendance records to supply records to the new school within 15 days of a request.

Another of the bills expands programs for tutorial assistance to elementary and secondary school pupils through funding of the hiring of qualified public university and college students.

Grants for higher educational institutions to conduct studies on secondary school dropout prevention was authorized by another bill. It is a companion of an initial $10,000 appropriation earlier approved for the purpose.

Other measures in the package require local school districts to supply the State Board of Education with dropout rates each year.

Other measures in the package approved by the governor were specifically aimed at reducing dropout rates among Hispanic students, including "non-discriminatory assessment tests" and studies of bilingual education.

For the second time in two years, Gov. Thompson has vetoed legislation providing public financing for gubernatorial campaigns.

The latest two bills he refused to sign would in one case have provided for a $1 voluntary checkoff from state income tax refunds, with funds to be distributed to candidates for governor and lieutenant governor. The other bill would have provided for voluntary contributions from income taxes due the state.

The legislation also included limits on campaign spending for those offices.

The legislation has been primarily pushed by Democrats, who have been at a disadvantage in campaign spending because of the vast amounts Thompson has been able to raise.

In his veto message, Thompson said direct payment into coffers of established political parties was "constitutionally suspect," and would amount to creating "official political parties."

He also cited a lack of standards to "determine what activities by the political parties are proper for expenditure of funds from the created fund."

Thompson also called public financing bills in general "bad government and bad politics."

The legislation proposed that candidates would qualify for matching contributions by raising at least $100,000 in contributions of $500 or less.

They would also have to limit total campaign spending to $1.5 million in the primary and $2 million in the general election.

In other actions, Thompson: Vetoed a bill which would have banned experimentation on fetuses. Thompson said it was so vaguely written that it might prohibit legitimate medical techniques to help the mother.

Signed into law a bill to require public defense to represent a young woman who seeks court action for an abortion without telling her parents. The provision was sought by "right to life" groups to correct a constitutional defect cited by a federal judge who struck down the state's parental notification law last year.

Signed into law a measure providing for emergency orders of protection to be issued by the court for police officers to arrange or provide for transportation of victims of domestic violence to the nearest court.

Pressure grows to merge schools

A largely hostile group of local school superintendents was told Oct. 9 the schools will face increasing pressure from the Illinois General Assembly to reorganize districts unless small districts begin to voluntarily combine.

Even Sen. John Maitland, R-Bloomington, who said he will continue to oppose state-forced consolidation, said there are districts which must consider reorganization because they are too small and inefficient and are not providing enough courses for their students.

DOUG WHITLEY, executive director of the Illinois Taxpayers Federation, said he hoped school districts "see the handwriting on the wall."

The alternative to reorganization is a "significantly higher real estate tax burden" with "doubling your current rates" likely, he said.

Both were panelists in one of the sessions of a conference for school superintendents held annually in Springfield by the State Board of Education.

Whitley predicted the Assembly will modify the state aid formula to provide less money to small, "inefficient" districts, forcing them to rely more on local property taxes unless they reorganize.

WHITLEY'S GROUP was not contending property taxes would be reduced by consolidation, but that higher-quality education would result, with more courses offered and less money spent on duplicative administrative costs.

He said many school boundaries make no sense and cited such problems as one district closing schools while an adjacent district is building new schools.

The last major round of school reorganization in Illinois was 30 years ago and "things have changed while our school systems have not," Whitley said.

CALVIN JACKSON, superintendent of the Prairie Central District in Livingston County in central Illinois — a district formed this year through consolidation of three unit districts — was the third panelist.

Voters in the three former districts supported the consolidation by 65 percent, and teachers and administrators worked smoothly in the transition, he said.

The consolidation enabled the district to substantially expand course offerings as well as extracurricular activities.

Instead of three high schools with grades 7 through 12, the new district now has a junior high and one high school, Jackson said.

QUESTIONS from superintendents in the audience were largely hostile, many of them charging the state is more concerned about cost or arbitrary size requirements than quality of education.

The intensity of the controversy was shown by the large audience the session attracted. The program drew about half of the superintendents, although there were seven other sessions on other topics going on at the same time.

Only California and Texas have more school districts than Illinois.

UNDER REFORM legislation passed by the Assembly in June, each educational service region is to study and make recommendations for submitting possible reorganization plans to voters.

The provision was considerably watered-down from earlier proposals which would have given the State Board of Education more authority to force consolidations.

The state board has endorsed a "model" for a minimum enrollment of 500 students for high schools. Speculation locally is focusing on possible study of a Venice-Madison school merger.

• Madison school elections

Mary's Credit Union and the Madison City Organization.

"To work for the taxpayers of Madison and use their tax dollars are spent properly" is the reason given by DONALD BRIDICK for seeking a position on the board.

A lifelong resident of Madison and a taxpayer for 20 years, Bridick said, "Some candidates rent and don't pay any tax to the City of Madison. If someone does not pay tax into our city, I feel they cannot be concerned how our dollars are spent." A police officer, he is a former chief of the department.

JOHN W. HAMM III, 1739 Fourth St., father of five children, is a candidate because "as a citizen of the community for the past 12 years, I feel the taxpayers should receive the best return for their dollars invested in the system, whether it be in the children's education, maintenance of school district facilities, contracted services or sports programs."

Hamm is an operator at the Shell Refinery and is the owner of Hamm's Landscaping and Sod. He is an incumbent member of the board, EDWARD DOHNAL, 1664 Sixth St., was first elected in 1981. "I am running because I care about our children and our school system," he said.

An Army veteran with service in Korea, Dohnal works at Columbia Chemical Co., St. Louis. He has been a member of the board's policy committee, the special education committee and the negotiation committee.

Also a candidate for the board, MIKE MACEK, 1600 Fourth St., is a former Madison fire chief and former alarm supervisor for the city.

"I feel that with my past experience, including seeking grants, I can be of service to the students, taxpayers and school system," he said.

A lifelong resident of Madison, Macek has served as supervisor of improvement projects for the city and supervisor of personnel on development projects.

A member of the board for seven years, MRS. BILLIE BOSWORTH seeks re-election, saying, "We have a very good district and we must strive to make it enjoyable for kids to attend."

"You must have genuine concern for children and pride in your community to put in the time it takes to help make your town and schools a great place to live and receive an education."

She served as school board secretary in 1980-81 and is on the negotiating committee. She is a board representative to the Southwestern Educators Legislative Lobbyists.

A seven-year member, JAMES NEWSOME SR. is seeking re-election "to continue to work for a higher quality of education for the district." He is a detective lieutenant on the staff of the Madison County sheriff.

Newsome adds, "I am proud to be one of the members who instituted the in-school supervision program to keep children off the streets when minor infractions of the rules have occurred. The program gives them an opportunity to keep up with their school work although still being penalized for these infractions."

Victorian ambience needn't overwhelm

By Barbara Hartung
Copley News Service

Q. I like the charm of Victorian designs, but I am a little afraid to go into that style for fear I will end up with a home that is too fussy and not very appropriate for today. Also, I don't think Victorian furniture styles are very comfortable.

A. I do have some accessories from the Victorian period and I would like to combine them with an updated look in my home.

Do you have any suggestions for protecting against what I consider the pitfalls of Victorian houses? — W.C.B.

A. I think you can have the charm of Victoriana but the comfort of today. Use the Victorian period for its design inspiration. Cover your upholstery pieces with bouquets and baskets of flowers in fabrics and accessorize with cranberry glass, crystal, polished woods and silver. But to ensure comfort, choose traditional designs in upholstered furniture. This way you will have the best of both worlds.

Q. I'm only starting to think about redecorating. My first priority will be my dining room. After that is finished, I want to make some living room changes.

A. These two rooms actually are separate. Should they, however, be treated with the same color scheme and in approximately the same style? — H.H.

A. Even though the two rooms are separate, I think you should carefully coordinate the color scheme of the two rooms as well as the general feeling and design. This is not to say that they must be the same exactly. In fact, because a dining room is used less frequently than most other rooms in the house, it often is treated more dramatically. Just don't let it get too bizarre — people usually like a mood to enhance their dining pleasure.

Q. If I use reproductions of the Chippendale style in my living room and dining room, what kind of accessories, rugs and fabrics should I use?

A. I have a plan to refurnish our home and I want it to be elegant and English in ambience. — P.N.M.

A. The Chippendale style of the 1750s to the 1780s in mahogany, with its graceful forms and occasional Chinese influence, suggests a melding of East and West — the Occident and the Orient.

Rich muted tones of yellow, green, blue and red were used with Chinese lacquer and some gilt.

Wood floors topped with Oriental or French rugs would be handsome. Fabrics could range from printed linen and chintz to more formal damasks and silks. Candlesticks and lighting fixtures wrought from brass would complement Chinese porcelain accents.

Tips for painting your shower stalls

Q. I would like to know the best method for completely repainting a shower stall. — R.C.

A. You do not say what material the shower walls are made of. If shower walls are concrete, paint them with a good concrete paint, such as one of the rubber resin enamels.

If they are of wood, any waterproof paint should serve. If they are slate, they should not be painted at all but given a coat of floor sealer.

If they are of any other material, such as metal (except stainless steel or aluminum), use any waterproof enamel. There are even special paints available today for ceramic tile.

Stainless steel can be protected with wax, while aluminum can be protected with lacquer or wax.

Q. In the upstairs hall we have a dry, tightly covered closet we'd like to line with cedar and use for storing winter clothes.

A. Is this a difficult job, and where can the cedar be obtained? — V.L.N.

A. Many lumber yards sell tongue-and-groove cut cedar boards for just this purpose. No unusual skill is needed, but, of course, the more skill and care employed, the neater the results.

Be sure to clean out all dust from cracks in the floor, corners, etc., before going ahead. Moths like to lay their eggs in dust, too.

Cedar-odor spray is an excellent (though somewhat temporary) treatment for any type of wood walls.

Skylights A Natural For Windowless Bath

Some baths are built without windows or adequate ventilation. If this is the case in your home, you can remedy the problem — without major remodeling — by installing a ventilating skylight.

According to APC Corp., a manufacturer of skylights, a ventilating skylight not only lets in lots of daylight, but produces a chimney effect when opened that exhausts warm stale air and humidity.

Stretching space in garden

By Patrick Denton
Copley News Service

About this time each year as I wander through the garden, I like to take a small notebook with me to make a few rough sketches of what grew where this past season.

Later, these sketches will go into my 1986 garden diary, with space next to them for the coming season's planned plantings. But for now, I'll just begin shifting different blocks of vegetables and flowers around in my mind, and start wrestling with a long-standing perennial problem — how to stuff into the garden all the things I want to grow.

With each year, our family is developing more little tricks for saving space and eking out of our plots as much productive growth as possible. Every sunny length of fence has been laced with heavy wire and utilized for training fruits of various kinds — pie cherry, gooseberry, red currants.

Right now my wife is pestering her resident expert in rustic garden construction for a long south-facing trellis along which to grow more such fruits.

Growing such fruits with fairly permanent, woody frames against a trellis, fence or house wall is basically a matter of training them in two dimensions — rather than three, and keeping them pruned so their arms are well spaced on the wires. The arms can be trained either horizontally or in the shape of a fan.

The black currant is not well adapted to this form of growing, since its wood requires renewing more frequently and it grows in a definite bush form.

The basic theory of growing as much as possible upward has tremendous potential in the home garden. Early this past spring, for example, I hauled two very tall circles of heavy wire fencing out of storage and wrestled them into circles with about an 18-inch opening.

Make The Most Of Freezer Storage

A home freezer offers today's busy family time-saving and money-saving advantages, say home economists from Whirlpool Corp.

This dependable appliance enables shoppers to buy and store in bulk when meats and fresh produce are offered at special savings. In addition, a homemaker can maximize cooking and baking time by preparing multiple batches and freezing them for future meals. The extra minutes used in preparation can give leisure hours later.

For maximum efficiency, choose a freezer that is neither too large nor too small for your family and lifestyle. To calculate the correct size, figure on 3 to 4 cubic feet per person. Allow more if you buy in quantity or entertain frequently.

Food turnover should average two to three times per year. Do not hoard the food — a freezer used just for long-term storage will not pay for itself and is a waste of food, electricity and space.

Chest freezers generally are more economical than uprights to operate because they let less cold air escape when opened; however, they do take up more floor space than upright models. Many homemakers prefer the convenience of an upright model for storing, rotating and removing food items.

Mexican resorts just seem to be a bit remote

By Fernando Romero
Copley News Service

IXTAPA-ZIHUATANEJO, Mexico—The spectacular sunsets may be ho-hum stuff to the natives, but they can bewitch those unaccustomed to the magnificence of a winter sun slowly melting into the ocean, its red glow reflecting on everyone and everything, while gentle, warm breezes bring in the starry night.

Along Zihuatanejo Bay's rim, tourists gather to enjoy the panorama and become one with the people of this region—manana is today, today is here forever. This daily ritual is part of the charm of Ixtapa-Zihuatanejo.

But it has not always been that way.

This beautiful region with its lush vegetation was so isolated from mainstream Mexico 20 years ago, it took nearly eight hours to get here from Acapulco—just 150 miles to the south—over a bumpy two-lane road.

As 52-year-old José Cruz Ruiz remembers it: "This was all hills and ocean, where people would work the land and fish in the bay for their livelihood. 'Tourist' was an unknown word around here."

Cruz, a pharmacist, no longer lives in Zihuatanejo—he has a drugstore in Acapulco now—but he still likes to visit his "garden spot" where "God comes to rest when he is tired."

Cruz knows well. He lived in Zihuatanejo most of his life and still makes the trip every other month "just to breathe the pure air and reminisce with my friends."

Perhaps no other resort area in Mexico is more deserving of the phrase "garden spot" than these two towns located a few miles from each other in the heart of Mexico's Gold Coast.

Although a hyphen will now link the two towns in the pages of history and geography, up until a few years ago only Zihuatanejo (zee-wah-tah-NAY-oh) existed. Ixtapa (ee-TAP-ah) is as new as its fabulous hotels, golf course, marina, shopping center and condominiums. Its creation was a mammoth undertaking by the Mexican government, which saw in the area a natural vehicle to attract international tourism and create jobs.

It has taken almost 15 years of hard planning and work—from blasting a modern road out of the dense surrounding forest to link the region to Mexico City and the rest of the country, to the creation of an international airport and a state-of-the-art waterworks system that provides clean, drinkable water—but the region now rivals perennial vacation favorites such as Acapulco and Puerto Vallarta.

Nature, naturally, has played its part by offering some of the most beautiful beaches and scenery in the country. The yearly temperature average of about 78 degrees—which reaches perfection (about 82 degrees) during the winter months—adds the warm, turquoise waters of the Pacific and Zihuatanejo Bay and it all together.

"Maybe there are a lot more people here today, but the beauty of this place has not changed," Cruz said. "If anything, the development over there (Ixtapa) has helped enhance it."

According to historians, Zihuatanejo once was "Zihuatlan," or land of women, because its people once were a matriarchal society. The conquering Spaniards rearranged the name and added the suffix "nejo" (meaning unimportant).

Until the early '60s, this was still an agricultural and fishing region with no more than 3,000 inhabitants. Americans who would venture to it were immediately enchanted, but the difficulty in getting here kept the masses of sun worshippers away.

Today, the area has approximately 35,000 people, most of whom work in Ixtapa as waiters, chambermaids, bellboys and other tourism-related jobs. However, it still retains the atmosphere that attracted the first American visitors.

On Zihuatanejo's main street there are the inevitable curio shops offering strident charro hats, beautifully embroidered blouses and tacky, pastel-colored T-shirts with racy messages across the chest.

Here, only the word "fabulous" can serve to describe the town's quintessential natural beauty and its hotels.

As in Zihuatanejo, Ixtapa is

Sun worshippers paradise

growing by leaps and bounds—the government predicts there will be more than 16,000 hotel rooms by the end of the next decade—but the small-town atmosphere prevails.

A mirror image of Cancun, the beach resort town in southern Mexico, Ixtapa was carefully carved from the dense jungle and rough terrain to preserve its wild beauty.

Most of the hotels here have been built with the idea that they should complement the natural surroundings. Judging by the results, the mission has been accomplished so far.

One of the foremost among the town's hotels is the Camino Real Ixtapa, a massive piece of architecture overlooking its own private beach, Vista Hermosa.

Designed by renowned architect Ricardo Legorreta, Camino Real Ixtapa resembles an Aztec pyramid when viewed from the sea. Constructed on the incline of a hill, the 12-story hotel matches the topography well, and its own lush gardens superbly complement the surrounding vegetation.

Large open spaces within the hotel and its stark Aztec design contribute to the overall feeling of peace and beauty sought by those escaping the bustle of the Big City. Other well-known hotel chains such as Sheraton, Holiday Inn and El Presidente have established themselves along the 1-mile Ixtapa beachfront.

A few miles offshore is Ixtapa Island, an uninhabited wonderland that will make you feel like a modern-day Robinson Crusoe. The island's north and south beaches offer some of the best snorkeling around. Tour boats make the trip to the island several times a day seven days a week.

If you're planning to fly there, Western Airlines makes two daily trips from Los Angeles with stops in Mazatlan. Also, call Aeromexico or Mexicana, which make daily connecting flights.

Casino Royale Is New Attraction Aboard Royal Caribbean Ships

When Royal Caribbean Cruise Line's Song of America and Nordic Prince returned to service this fall after their scheduled drydock, each boasted a new casino as an added attraction for passengers. Both casinos, named "Casino Royale," offer blackjack tables, American roulette and a variety of more than 100 electronic slot machines.

Last October, Royal Caribbean opened its first shipboard casino aboard Song of Norway and, according to Rod McLeod, Senior Vice President, Sales & Marketing, "Passenger and trade reaction to the 'Casino Royale' on Song of Norway has clearly indicated that our style of a low-stakes gambling casino is an appealing attraction to a significant segment of our passenger audience."

According to McLeod, Royal Caribbean's sea-going casinos are not designed to compete with land-based gambling destinations or cruise lines who place major marketing emphasis on their gambling operations.

"Our first priority continues to be to deliver a well-rounded quality cruise vacation experience to each of our passengers. Many of our passengers never see the inside of our 'Casino Royale' and that's OK with us," he said. "But for those who enjoy a game of chance as one element of the total entertainment mix on a cruise vacation, we're Providing that opportunity." The results of the first year of operation of the "Casino Royale" aboard Song of Norway showed that a number of passengers were interested in trying their luck but had never played black jack or American roulette in a casino environment and were hesitant to do so for fear of doing something wrong. The Line's casino personnel now conduct "risk-free" classes on these games of chance and these classes will also be offered in the new casinos aboard Song of America and Nordic Prince. "At first glance, this may sound like a hunter giving flying lessons to a duck, but the classes are a lot of fun and attract more people than our 'Grandmother's Tea,'" said McLeod.

Child & Family Development Specialist with the University of Missouri Cooperative Extension Service. But some pre-trip planning on your part can add to fewer hours of despondency for you, and a better experience for your children.

Children need to learn the purpose of a trip. Stories about travel from your local library can help. Older children can write to tourist bureaus or chambers of commerce and request information. Let them see you reading the travel guides and hear you talk about what you will see and do.

Tell children in advance new things they will experience on the trip and rules that will be necessary. Young children require lots of patience and explanation to remember the rules. Older children can be given more responsibility in helping to set up the rules. Some rules might be who will sit where, how much money to spend on snacks, how long to travel each day, bed time.

Don't over pack! Take easy-care familiar clothes. When selecting toys for children, remember old favorites may lend security while new toys provide novelty. But the purpose of the trip should be different from playing with toys like at home, or sleeping away potentially interesting places.

Give children a map of their own, and each evening check where you have been and where you will go next day.

A game you might play together is: "Where I See It From." You describe clues the children guess and finally identify places they have been on the trip.

If going by car, keep track of how many different license plates you see each day and learn the different state slogans and capitals.

Encourage children to read signs or point out directions: the way to Seattle, the coffee shop or restroom. And don't forget to play: "I Took A Trip." The object of this game is to remember sequence. The leader begins with, "I took a trip, and on this trip I saw..." The next person repeats that and adds another object he/she saw. As the list gets longer, each person who forgets to take the order of items is out until the next round.

ness in Missouri. In fact, tourism has become the second largest industry in the state. One component of that industry - timesharing - recently came under new regulations.

Timesharing involves a plan in which a purchaser receives ownership rights or right-to-use accommodations for a specified time period at a vacation facility.

Lawmakers were urged to take action because of the soaring number of consumer complaints filed with the Attorney General. Annual complaints surged from 13 to nearly 700 between 1981 and 1984.

Examples of consumer complaints include the promise of a "Winebago sleeper" in promotional literature that turned out to be a sleeping bag and a motor boat that turned out to be a rubber raft. Consumers have also complained about high pressure sales tactics and inadequate information concerning exchange rights.

The new law, signed by the governor on May 31, provides greater consumer protection in four areas:

First, the purchaser of a timeshare plan or property will have five days after his purchase to cancel that purchase. A printed notice of this right must be given to each purchaser. This right to cancel cannot be waived.

Second, the Attorney General's office is reviewing all promotional materials before they are sent to consumers. However, such approval of promotional materials is not endorsement by the Attorney General of a timeshare plan.

Any promotion in which gifts are offered to induce visits to the property will be required to state the retail value of those gifts. Failure of the seller to provide a prospective purchaser with one of the inducement gifts promised within 10 days will entitle the prospective purchaser to a gift of cash equal to the retail value of the most expensive gift identified in the promotion. Failure to give this gift of cash will entitle the prospective purchaser to bring lawsuit to collect five times the value of the most expensive gift offered, up to one thousand dollars, in addition to any actual damages.

Third, any exchange plan allowing purchasers access to off-site timeshare plans will be fully explained to purchasers prior to the execution of a contract.

Fourth, "timeshare" has been broadly defined to include campgrounds and recreational vehicles as well as condominiums. This broad definition protects consumers from the total spectrum of potential timeshare abuses.

It is hoped that by alerting consumers to the new timeshare regulations, the Attorney General's Office can help them make informed decisions about timeshare operations can be put out of business. The new law certainly enhances Missouri's vacation industry and the Missouri's pursuit of leisure.

To learn more about the new timeshare regulations or to report a complaint, call the Consumer Hotline 1-800-322-2222 or write, Trade Offenses Division, Office of the Attorney General, P.O. Box 899, Jefferson City, Mo. 65102.

New state law signed gives track tax a break

By ED GURNEY

A tax break signed into law by Gov. James Thompson last week will help the Fairmount Park horse race track cope with the effects of declining attendance and static revenues, according to assistant general manager Brian Zander.

The law is expected to provide a saving of at least $1.5 million a year, which will be split between the track and horsemen.

"It's not a solution, but it's a pretty good Band-Aid for an industry having problems at smaller racetracks," Zander said.

The law reduces the privilege tax taken by the state. Scheduled to expire in three years, it affects Fairmount, Quad-City Downs in East Moline and Balmoral Park in Crete.

Previously, Fairmount paid the same percentage privilege tax as tracks in Cook County, even though the Chicago area tracks have much higher revenue.

"If we were in downtown Chicago, we wouldn't need a tax break," Zander said.

Attendance at Fairmount has gone down 5 percent a year since 1982, he said. The handle has remained roughly the same while costs have increased, he added.

FAIRMOUNT LOST $500,000 last year, he said. "If the track were not owned by a large company (Ogden Leisure) making money, it wouldn't have lasted this long," Zander said.

"Now, for the time being, we have a chance of having a profit."

Reduced attendance is a general industry trend, he said.

Giving reasons for Fairmount's attendance decline, he cited competition from the lottery and other entertainment attractions in the St. Louis area, including the red-hot St. Louis baseball Cardinals.

THE TAX BREAK could aid Fairmount in competition with a proposed track in Missouri, Zander said. The bill was sponsored by State Sen. Sam Vadalabene (D-Edwardsville). It takes effect immediately.

"Fairmount is the hardest hit by the economy," he said. "The additional $1.5 million will keep the track going and keep the jobs there. We're confident now, that for at least the next three years, it will keep going."

The track is Collinsville's largest employer.

Fairmount comptroller Brian Cobb said the saving could be as high as $2.2 million per year, depending on how the law is interpreted.

HE SAID there is no question about the saving in the privilege tax. The state will now get a net 1 percent of handles up to $400,000.

Previously, the state received 1.75 percent for handles up to $200,000 and 3.25 percent of amounts between $200,000 and $300,000. The rate went up to 3.75 for amounts between $300,000 and $400,000.

The scale for handles over $400,000 was not affected by the law, Cobb said.

While the state's share is reduced, the amount of money deducted from the handle remains the same. Fairmount will receive about $5,500 more per night if it attains a handle of $400,000, Cobb said.

THE HANDLE averages $500,000 at Fairmount. It almost always tops $400,000 for thoroughbred racing, but sometimes dips below that.

SIUE technical staff signs pact

Technical workers at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville on Oct. 1 became the first group of employees to work under a contract negotiated through a new state law on collective bargaining in education.

The 94 workers in the group last December voted for representation by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) union. Negotiations were completed in late September.

"I think it's a real step forward," Peggy Zimmerman, an AFSCME staff representative, said of the contract. "It's something we can continue to build on."

Major provisions include an 8 percent wage increase retroactive to July and additional vacation and sick leave benefits. Employees averaged an additional two days of vacation per year, she said.

The contract also establishes a grievance procedure with binding arbitration, and outlines labor-management conferences intended to improve relations between the two sides.

The move to unionize stems from the Illinois Labor Relations Act, which allows for collective bargaining in education. It took effect Jan. 1, 1984. AFSCME currently is negotiating contracts for clerical and custodial workers at SIUE.

amount for harness racing and in bad weather, Cobb said.

What is uncertain, Cobb said, is whether Fairmount will benefit from a reduction in the multiple wagering tax, a tax on bets involving more than one horse. Under the law, that tax is being reduced from 2.5 percent to 1.5 percent.

What is not yet certain is whether the track can keep the other 1 percent. Zander said he has a call in to the state auditor's office to get an interpretation of that part of the law.

A total of 167 thoroughbred racing dates and 85 harness racing dates for 1986 have been awarded to Fairmount by the Illinois Racing Board.

THE AWARD came last week at a racing board meeting in Chicago and was in sharp contrast to the procedure that took place before 1985 dates were awarded late last year.

The number of thoroughbred dates is the same as this year; there will be two more harness racing dates. There will be harness racing next year from Jan. 1 to March 15 and from Nov. 15 to Dec. 29, according to Zander.

1986 thoroughbred racing dates will be March 21 to Nov. 8.

LAST YEAR, the racing board held up the award of racing dates until Fairmount's owners completed an internal audit of bidding.

Before awarding the dates last November, the board fined the track and ordered it to repay $2.1 million obtained from a state fund.

An associate circuit judge ruled in May that the racing board exceeded its authority in ordering the money paid back. The racing board is appealing that decision.

Can shopping be roulette?

Do we take our lives in our hands every time we go grocery shopping these days?

Looking at the tempting mounds of fresh produce, the rows of brightly packaged foods, the sparkling meat counters, the inviting frozen food and delicatessen displays, who would suspect any danger lurking there? Why worry — isn't there somebody out there who checks all our food before it is delivered to the stores?

Despite the claims of the food industry, the Food and Drug Administration and a host of lesser agencies, this year already has seen two of the largest epidemics of food-borne illness and death in recent history.

In March and April, 16,000 people became ill and five people died in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Illinois and Iowa from salmonella poisoning in milk. The outbreak was traced to contaminated pasteurized milk from an Illinois market chain.

In June, a Mexican-style cheese was found to be contaminated with a deadly infection called Listeria monocytogenes, responsible for at least 80 deaths so far. That total exceeds the toll of all other single-source food-borne epidemics in recent U.S. history.

July brought us contaminated California-grown watermelons that caused illness in 200 people in four states. We have now learned that the watermelons were tainted with a supposedly illegal pesticide that was known to have killed 2,000 people in India in December.

Within the past few weeks, eight people became ill from eating ice milk suspected of containing ammonia.

Recently, we were warned not to drink Austrian wine, because traces of a chemical used to make antifreeze were found.

Would we be safer eating only foods that are "naturally fertilized," as is done in Asia and much of the rest of the world? No. The so-called "natural" fertilizers used in some countries are human waste that can be, and often is, highly infected with a variety of dangerous organisms that can cause severe illness and death. U.S. farmers don't use such fertilization methods, fortunately.

Food poisonings are not limited to single causes, nor can the blame be placed on a few specific heads. In the years that records of food poisoning incidences have been kept, salmonellae in meat, poultry and milk products have been most common.

Scoring with pasta

Rare is the home these days that doesn't harbor a football fan somewhere on the premises.

What that means is that weeks from late summer to early January are one long succession of TV gridiron clashes. Whether you regard that fact with enthusiasm or resignation, you can make the most of the situation by inviting a group of like-minded souls to share the fun.

Football parties lend themselves to entertaining of the very best kind—little effort and lots of fun.

Avoid being tied to the kitchen all day by planning a buffet of flavorful foods that guests can enjoy as the spirit moves them.

Imaginative pasta salads not only make good eating but also won't leave you looking like a limp and bedraggled as the afternoon wears on.

Team up fanciful shapes such as twists and shells, or more conventional noodles or fusilli, with such diverse companions as crunchy broccoli, chunks of ham, tender-crisp zucchini, bell peppers, cauliflower, water chestnuts, ripe olives, tomatoes, mushrooms, onions, capers, asparagus, peas or cheese.

For a final flavor touch, add a zesty oil and vinegar or creamy dressing and blend the whole together.

The salads can be made the night before, leaving the morning for laying out a complementary selection of sliced meats and cheeses, imported mustards, deli breads, fresh fruits and relishes.

CALIFORNIA PASTA SALAD
1 (8 oz.) pkg. pasta twists
Flowerets from 1/2 head fresh broccoli
1 (3 oz.) slice ham, diced
1/2 red onion, sliced and separated into rings
4 scallion tops, chopped
1/2 red bell pepper, cut in chunks
1/2 cup black olives, sliced
Bottled or homemade oil and vinegar dressing

Prepare pasta according to package directions. While pasta is cooking, steam or microwave broccoli flowerets until tender crisp. Allow broccoli to cool.

Mix all ingredients together in a large bowl and toss until thoroughly coated with dressing. Refrigerate for at least 30 minutes to allow flavors to mingle.

STIR-FRY GARDEN PASTA SALAD
2 cups spinach ribbon noodles, cooked
2 cups fettuccini noodles, cooked
2 tbsps. olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 tsp. dried basil
1/2 cup dried oregano
1/2 cup snow peas, fresh or frozen
1 cup broccoli flowerets
1/2 cup chicken broth
1/2 tsp. salt
1 cup fresh mushrooms, sliced
medium tomato, diced
1/2 cup water chestnuts, sliced
2 tbsps. ripe olives, sliced
1/2 cup fresh parsley, minced
2 tbsps. Parmesan cheese

Heat olive oil in medium skillet. Sauté garlic, basil and oregano. Stir-fry snow peas and broccoli. Cook, covered, 3 minutes. Add chicken broth. Remove from heat. In large bowl, sprinkle salt on cooked noodles. Add mushrooms, tomato, water chestnuts, olives and parsley. Toss. Add hot vegetable and spice mixture to noodle mixture. Toss to mix. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.

Serves 4.

Whitefish with tarragon sauce

1 cup finely julienned carrot
1/2 cup vertically sliced onion
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
1/2 cup poaching liquid (see note)
1/2 cup dry sherry
1/2 tsp. tarragon, crushed
1/2 cup green grapes, seeded if necessary
1/2 cup green grapes, seeded if necessary
1/2 tsp. salt, if desired
1/2 tsp. sugar, if desired
1 tbsps. water
1 tsp. cornstarch
1 lb. whitefish, poached
Sauté carrot and onion in butter until tender.

Add poaching liquid, sherry and tarragon. Bring to boil, add grapes, salt and sugar. Heat thoroughly. Combine water and cornstarch; stir into grape mixture and cook and stir until thickened.

Pour over fish. Makes 4 servings. Note: To poach fish, in large skillet with cover combine 4 cups water, 1/2 cup sliced onion, 2 lemon slices, 6 peppercorns and 1 teaspoon salt. Bring to boil. Add fish, cover and simmer about 10 minutes per inch of thickness measured at its thickest part or until fish flakes when tested with a fork. Drain fish and place on serving platter; hold warm. Reserve 1/2 cup of poaching liquid.

GARDEN PASTA SALAD WITH PESTO SAUCE

1/4 cup salad oil
1/4 cup walnut pieces
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tbsps. basil leaves, crushed
1/4 tsp. garlic powder
1/4 tsp. salt
1 1/2 cups lightly packed fresh parsley leaves
4 cups cooked ziti macaroni
1 cup sliced yellow squash
1 cup cauliflowerets
1/2 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1/4 cup sliced radishes
1 tbsps. sliced green onions
Shredded Romaine
6 cherry tomatoes, halved

To make sauce: In covered blender container, combine 6 tablespoons oil, walnuts, cheese, basil, garlic powder and salt. With rapid "On-Off" action, blend to coarse puree. Add remaining oil and parsley. Repeat "On-Off" action until mixture is pureed (do not overblend—small particles of parsley are desirable). In large bowl combine cooked ziti and remaining ingredients except Romaine and tomatoes, with dressing. Toss to coat pasta mixture evenly. Cover; refrigerate at least 4 hours. To serve: Line serving platter with Romaine, top with salad. Garnish with cherry tomatoes.

Makes 7 cups or 6 servings.

PIZZERIA SALAD

1 (10 oz.) pkg. tagliarini (flat noodle) pasta
Italian dressing (see below)
2 cups turkey ham chunks
1 cup chopped tomato
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 cup cubed mozzarella cheese
1/2 cup sliced ripe olives
1/2 cup sliced green onions

Cook tagliarini as package directs; drain. Prepare Italian dressing; pour over pasta while still warm. Add remaining ingredients; toss gently. Serve immediately or chill if desired.

Makes 6 to 8 appetizer or lunch portions.

Italian Dressing: Combine 1/2 cup red wine vinegar, 1/2 cup salad oil, 1 clove fresh garlic, minced, 1 teaspoon each sugar and prepared mustard, 1/4 teaspoon each Italian herb seasoning and seasoned salt, and 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Cabbage one of the common foods

If vegetables had a social hierarchy, many people would place cabbages firmly among the commoners. Neither seasonal, expensive nor hard to find, cabbage suffers from unfair and often inaccurate rumors. Common complaints are that the odor and taste of cooked cabbage is unpleasantly strong, and that dishes made with it often are heavy and greasy. All of these alleged faults can be blamed on the cook and not the cabbage.

Overcooking is the cabbage's worst enemy. Instead of the slightly crisp texture, pleasing aroma and rich, mild flavor that cabbage should have, overcooked leaves turn mushy, unpleasantly pungent and strong tasting.

CABBAGE STUFFED WITH CHICKEN

12 large leaves savory or green cabbage
3 cups cooked, shredded chicken meat
3 tbsps. butter
¼ cup scallions, thinly sliced
1 clove garlic, finely minced
2 large tomatoes, chopped
¼ tsp. dill weed
¼ tsp. ground allspice
¼ tsp. cumin
2 tbsps. white wine
Salt and pepper to taste
2 heaping tbsps. sour cream

¼ cup chopped parsley
1½ cups cooked white rice
3 cups of your favorite tomato sauce
2 cups shredded Swiss cheese

Plunge cabbage leaves into large pot of boiling, salted water, two at a time, for 1 minute. Carefully remove leaves, rinse under cold water and drain on paper towels.

In large skillet, melt butter over medium-high heat. Sauté scallions, garlic and tomatoes for 5 minutes. Add dill, allspice, cumin, wine and salt and pepper to taste. Stir and continue cooking another 3 to 4 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in sour cream, parsley and rice. Mix well.

One at a time, lay cabbage leaves out on flat surface. If necessary, cut through thick part of stem, so leaf will lie flat. Place heaping one-third cup of chicken mixture on each leaf, fold sides in, and roll leaf so that it makes neat, sealed "package" for stuffing.

Place all 12 stuffed leaves in oiled baking dish large enough to hold them snugly. Pour tomato sauce over them and top with Swiss cheese.

Bake at 375 F, uncovered, until very hot and bubbly. Serves 4.

Le Sueur peas don't get any bigger than this.

The smaller the pea, the more sweet and tender. Le Sueur® peas have a delicate flavor to complement your meals. Buy four cans, send in the labels and we'll send you a dollar.

Chocolate without guilt

Chocolate T-shirts, newsletters, excursions and posters all pay tribute to the addiction many Americans have for chocolate. The average American consumes about nine pounds of this confection per year.

Baby boomers have grown up but not given up their passion for chocolate. The hidden addiction of the past has emerged as a trendy passion of the yuppie generation.

Lauded as a cure of ailments, an aphrodisiac and a potion bequeathing divine powers, chocolate brings a rich heritage to modern chocophiles.

Theobroma, or "food of the gods" as 18th century Linnaeus referred to cacao, originated in the Amazon or Orinoco basin more than 4,000 years ago. Cortes, the Mexican conqueror, was introduced to the cacao bean beverage by Montezuma, who drank the prestigious liquor from golden goblets, which were thrown away after one use.

Spanish nobility hoarded Cortes' discovery, but eventually the secret drifted across Europe. The Swiss are given credit for perfecting chocolate.

Switzerland is also the origination point of another chocolate favorite, Ovaltine, which was originally developed as a nutritional food supplement for convalescing patients. In 1904, after years of research, Dr. Wander of Berne, Switzerland, developed a chocolate milk flavoring that provided the necessary nourishment needed by the sick. It tasted so good that patients demanded the product be available in grocery stores after their discharge and the rest is history.

Rich in vitamins, minerals and protein, the newest Ovaltine chocolate drink out this summer is a boon to modern-day, health-conscious chocolate lovers. Ovaltine, in a glass of 2-percent milk, provides a minimum of 20 percent of protein and all 19 vitamins and minerals specified by the U.S. RDA.

In response to the popular chocolate and health craze, Ovaltine is updating its image with an improved, more chocolaty flavor, a new strawberry flavor, new sugar-free and caffeine-free selections, a new canister style package and new nutrient balance. It is also providing recipes for Ovaltine Energy Snacks.

OVALTINE ENERGY SNACKS

1 cup chocolate flavor Ovaltine
1 cup sugar
½ cup milk
½ cup butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 ½ cups granola cereal
½ cup raisins
½ cup chopped nuts

In medium saucepan, combine Ovaltine, sugar, milk and butter. Bring mixture to a boil, stirring constantly. Continue cooking over medium-low heat until a small amount of mixture forms a soft ball (234 degrees F.) when dropped in cold water. Stir frequently. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Add granola, raisins and nuts; mix well. Drop mixture by heaping teaspoons onto waxed paper. Let stand until firm. Store snacks in tightly covered container, 4 dozen.

School merger meetings slated

Informational meetings for members of local Reorganization Committees, created by the new Illinois School District Reorganization Act, will be conducted by State Superintendent of Education Ted Sanders at six sites across the state between Oct. 17 and Nov. 6.

The regional meetings will include Mount Vernon on Oct. 24 and Greenville College, Greenville, Nov. 4.

Each educational service region of the state except Cook County, which was divided into three subregions, has a reorganization panel. Each committee has no fewer than seven elected officials as members.

The new law requires the committees to develop reorganization plans for school districts in their educational regions and submit them to the State Board of Education by June 30, 1986.

Unless there is a justifiable exception, the act sets the following minimum criteria for districts: elementary enrollment of 1,000 students, high school enrollment of 500 or total unit enrollment of 1,500 students.

The act also establishes unit districts as the preferred choice for organizational structure, rather than separate grade school and high school districts.

Once the plans are reviewed by the State Board, local voters will decide whether to approve a proposal to merge districts.

Force Base in Texas.

"I am pleased these local companies have succeeded in winning these contracts, which will add significantly to the economic health of their communities," said Price.

"Maintaining and improving the economic life of the 21st District, providing solid employment opportunities for its citizens, has been foremost among my goals in Washington."

$10 million commissary at Scott Base

Congressman Melvin Price (D-Illinois) has announced the award of three major military contracts to firms in the 21st District of Illinois. "The contracts total nearly $25 million," Price noted.

The L. Wolf Company of Granite City was the successful bidder on a $10,980,000 contract to build a new commissary at Scott Air Force Base in Belleville.

A contract for $10,290,895 went to the Olin Corporation's Winchester Group of East Alton to operate and maintain the Lake City Army Ammunition Plant in Independence, Mo.

K & L Construction Co. of Glen Carbon won a $3,299,052 contract to construct additions to the corrosion control facility at Carswell Air

Voting privacy law approved

A new Illinois law prevents observation of ballot casting in electronic voting booths.

"It places the same requirements on electronic voting booths that currently exist on paper balloting procedures," Gov. James Thompson said. "Such provisions are necessary to ensure preservation of the secret ballot. Privacy is essential for citizens making a clear choice, free of any influence from pollwatchers or election judges."

Electronic voting booths must be arranged in the same manner as provided for with paper ballots. They must be equipped with three enclosed sides and a curtain in the front of the booth.

The legislation takes effect Jan. 1, 1986.

Drug abuse plan for women funded

A newly-signed series of Illinois laws consists of:

House Bill 2180: Includes women among those people specifically targeted for alcohol and substance abuse prevention programs. An appropriation of $375,000 was included in the Department of Alcohol and Substance Abuse 1985-86 budget to administer this initiative. It takes effect Jan. 1, 1988.

House Bill 2328: Increases penalties Jan. 1 for sexual offenders by allowing the seizure of any vehicle, vessel or aircraft used in the commission of sex-related crimes.

Senate Bill 621: Makes the improper disposal of hazardous waste a Class 3 felony carrying a fine up to $250,000 per violation. The law takes effect Jan. 1.

Senate Bill 1110: Provides that veterans organizations and the American Legion do not have to possess a firearm owner's identification card while using firearms for ceremonial purposes with blank ammunition, effective Jan. 1.

Senate Bill 1188: Adopts the definition of criminal obscenity as outlined by the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in Miller v. California. In that case, the court ruled that material was obscene if, taken as a whole, it appealed to prurient interest and lacked serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value. The bill takes effect Jan. 1.

Business News

Granite City, Japan share future

14C GRANITE CITY JOURNAL—October 16, 1985

(The Mill, GC Steel)
They shook hands in greeting before sitting down around a conference table at the BOF (basic oxygen furnace) to talk "business." The business of making steel — quality steel.

The occasion was another of the weekly communication meetings held at different locations in the plant in a continuing program called "Lunch with the GM." But this lunch was different because of special participants from Nippon Kokan — Mr. Kamiya, executive vice president of NKK and vice chairman of National Steel; Mr. Tokumitsu, general manager of NKK; and Mr. Doi, executive vice president of National Steel.

GC Steel employees meeting with the special guests from Nippon Kokan and Bill Swanson, vice president and general manager, were Harold McBride, Standard Gauge; Virgil Tomlinson, Ben Snell, Dana Walker, Ron Frauenfelder and Jim Odehnal, all of BOF; Gary Gan, Hot Strip; and Jim Squires, general superintendent of steelmaking.

Conversation over lunch was dedicated to steel. Kamiya was asked what he thought about the future of steel. He said many people think and say the steel industry is heading for disaster. "Quite the contrary is true," he said. "The steel industry has a bright future...if we maintain our competitiveness."

"We (NKK and National Steel) are actively engaged in maintaining and improving our competitive edge. We are constantly in contact with Bill Swanson, and we're trying our very best to make National Steel the most competitive steel company in the U.S."

When asked what brought NKK and NSC together, Kamiya said the two companies have a long relationship of joint research and technical exchange of information dating back 17 or 18 years to template production. "The joint venture is a symbol of that historic cooperation between the two companies in order to make National Steel a strong and modern steel producer," Kamiya said.

One questioner asked about vast improvements if we're to stay competitive, and we are going to get them?

Swanson responded we have good steelmaking and rolling facilities for making many kinds of steel, compared to our domestic competition. He said we're adding continuous caster improvements for more durable and accurate steel; a metallurgy station for cleaner, lower sulfur and better quality for all applications; replacing 1948 equipment with new shape controls in the Cold Mill; and adding desulfurization in the ladle to improve quality and competitiveness.

He said the plant is modern through the Hot Strip Mill, but the Pickle Line, Tin Line and Temper Mill are old operations and we're studying what should be done.

Kamiya said our steelmaking facilities were comparable to other domestic steel companies, but not at all comparable on worldwide standards. "Generally, production equipment facilities in the American steel industry are relatively obsolete," he said. "Large-scale modernization will have to take place to increase the quality standards. Better quality will have to be produced."

Another point of discussion was productivity problems caused by bottlenecks from the Blooming Mill to the Hot Strip Mill because of plant layout. Aware of the problem of plant layout, Swanson said the slab handling area was being studied. The flow and delivery of material are of utmost importance because customers want a quality product at the right cost, but also delivered when needed.

We're working on the problems of the slab location system and need to learn to make slabs we don't have to condition so much; and we need to develop a tracking system and schedule control system, he said. NKK mills have a high degree of computerization for tracking and applying standard operating procedures, he added.

The same thing happens everywhere," Kamiya said. "NKK had similar problems and that's why we developed a system where production is done smoothly from beginning to end. We resolved the problem with a computerized system...but not before we got together and studied where the problems were. With an attitude of the ultimate goal of quality and productivity towards your job and your neighbor's job, you can work together to develop a system for improving your production operations."

Attitude and communication between employees, departments and divisions are very important in making National Steel Corporation a strong, competitive steel producer," said Doi. "And the best job security you can find in the world is a sound company."

The meeting provided a unique opportunity for GC Steel employees to talk with representatives from Nippon Kokan about the future of Granite City Steel and National Steel, a future dedicated to the making of steel. All in attendance agreed they had a major stake in its future.

Ozzie's glove bat lifts Cards to 3-2 series lead

The heat may have been on in the Cardinal clubhouse Monday, but the hottest Red Bird of them all was that little dynamo at shortstop Ozzie Smith.

Smith started the game with one of his patented backflips. Seemingly, when Smith thrills the fans with one of his backward alley-oops, the Cardinals usually have their way, breezing to victory. There's something very soothing when Ozzie backflips his way to shortstop in the first inning.

Things were soothing early Monday as the Cardinals jumped stop Fernando Valenzuela, but grew increasingly tense when Bill Madlock swatted a two-run homer

In the Spotlight

By Alan L. Gerstenecker
Executive Sports Editor

In the fourth inning to knot things up.

Well, as the game Monday dwindled into the bottom of the ninth, Ozzie Smith took things into his own hands as if to say, 'Hey guys, I did my backflip. We're supposed to win.'

It was then that Ozzie, perhaps the most unlikely regular member of the Cardinals to hit the long ball, took matters into his own hands.

Watching the game, I commented how unfortunate it was that Los Angeles pitcher Tom Niedenfer was right-handed and not left. For had he been left-handed Ozzie's chances of swatting a game-winning home run would have been much better.

It's amazing all the things that can go through your head in such little time.

Still thinking aloud, I began to wonder if Ozzie had ever hit a home run left-handed. It wasn't long after that that the answer was a clear and as loud as the aerial bombs that exploded over Busch Stadium.

The Wizardry of Ozzie had done it again. And, uncharacteristically, without his glove. This time Ozzie won the game with his bat. Surely, he'll have it bronzed!

The Cardinal victory Monday was a testament to the 1985 Red Birds. What America saw these first two games of the National League Championship Series in Los Angeles was not the Cardinals that we, the people in the Midwest, have been seeing all season. How unfortunate it would be, I thought, if America was not treated to the same during Red Birds that we have seen all season.

What a shame, not to witness the style that made the Cardinals the winningest team in baseball.

Well, rest assured Cardinal and Dodger fans alike. What you saw Monday ARE the same Cardinals that ended the regular season with the best record in baseball. They ARE the same Redbirds that stole 300-plus bases during the regular season. They ARE the same Cardinals who finished the season with the highest team batting average in the National League.

They are the same team that had two 20-game winners in Joaquin Andujar and John Tudor, and they are the same team that will boost the NL's MVP in Willie McGee and the Rookie of the Year in Vince Coleman.

They are also the team that has Ozzie Smith, the shortstop who has monopolized on the Golden Glove award this decade.

The same Ozzie who is now known for his bat.

Correction

In the Wednesday, Oct. 9, issue of the Granite City Journal, the name of a Granite City cross country runner was incorrectly listed.

In the story it was stated Cheryl Bortel was among those athletes participating. The name should have read Daria Portell. She finished 19th overall for the Warriors in the Jacksonville Invitational last Saturday.

The newspaper regrets the error or any inconvenience it may have caused.

aluminum foil and threw a garbage bag over his shoulders when caught in an unexpected shower. He carried one of those collapsing cups, which makes more sense to me than the classic Sierra cup. He carried extra rubber bands (I still save 'em) to keep waxed paper anchored to an open can, to hold the sections of a backpack fishing rod together and to a walking stick, to seal items in plastic bags, even to hold trouser legs snug in dusty or chigger country.

If he camped in tree country, he carried a hammock. He never was without an elastic shock cord, useful for such things as holding a piece of plastic in place when rain threatens to ambush gear stacked on a picnic table.

He was like an Indian in the woods. You know the story? White man make big fire, warm front, freeze rear. Indian make small fire, warm whole body. He may have invented that camping aphorism that I first saw years ago atop Chattanooga's Lookout Mountain: "Take only pictures. Leave only footprints." He instinctively knew that cutting across switchbacks resulted in mountain-side erosion.

Charlie was hard core. He had little use for motor homes and the like. He categorized the occupants once: "They certainly aren't campers. They want mainly to find a change of scenery, some new sights and sounds and a change of pace from their daily routine."

He might have mellowed, had he lived till now. Certainly I've never apologized for that tent trailer experience north of Benson, Ariz., when we were chasing javelina. We found the beasts too far in to hike and were ambushed, just as the hunt started, by a snowstorm. Love that Starcraft tag-along trailer.

And the Heilite car-topper, which came in handy at Quaking Aspen campground outside Gallup, N.M. We set up in perfect comfort, before the rain. But the folk next door arrived and began spreading canvas just as the heavens opened. Warm and dry, we peeked outside next morning. Our neighbors were perched like rain-drenched crows on a rilling bordering the campsite. Live and learn.

Everybody looks for the perfect sleeping bag, but it doesn't exist, of course. What's right for tent and station wagon camping may be much too light for hard ground-plastic sheet camping in the mountains. The Sierra requires a minimum of 2½ pounds of down, for example, unless you're in a tent and wearing Eddie Bauer booties. Ideally, the camper has two bags, one for mild weather, the other for high-elevation camping.

The Dutch oven is the all-purpose camp pot, if weight is of no consequence. You can bake and fry and broil and steam in it, make biscuits and flapjacks and hunter's stew and bury it in the ground for the tastiest one-pot dinner a camper ever ate. But it's certainly not for backpacking, unless you're Paul Bunyan.

I received a news release and a tent picture last week in which just about everything violated good camping practices. The tent was close to a tree, under dead branches, in a swale. Stay away from trees and especially dead branches, which have a way of falling during a night breeze.
